JET FUEL AVIATION INDUSTRY, MILITARY

What is Jet Fuel?

Jet fuel, also known as aviation turbine fuel or Avtur, is a specialized type of kerosene used to power jet engines in aircraft. It's a highly refined petroleum product, typically colorless or straw-colored, and designed for the specific demands of aviation.

Let's See Who We Are?

BP Energy focus on activities in oil and commodities trading and transport and sale of petroleum, natural gas and petroleum products. Using our sector knowledge and global supply base, we source and market commodities to industrial consumers – such as manufacturers, power companies and processors of oil.

GAS OIL

TRANSPORTATION, INDUSTRIAL APPLICATIONS

What is Gas Oil?

High Speed Diesel and Biodiesel (B5) are perfect for high-speed diesel engines 1,000 revolutions per minute. They serve well in transportation vehicles like trucks and trains, and are also suitable for industrial applications such as boilers and direct combustion.

Let's See Who We Are?

BP Energy focus on activities in oil and commodities trading and transport and sale of petroleum, natural gas and petroleum products. Using our sector knowledge and global supply base, we source and market commodities to industrial consumers – such as manufacturers, power companies and processors of oil.

LIQUIFIED NATURAL GAS TRANSPORTATION, POWER GENERATION & INDUSTRIAL APPLICATIONS

What is LNG?

LNG, or Liquefied Natural Gas, is natural gas that has been cooled to about -260°F (-162°C) to become a liquid. This liquefaction process reduces the volume of the gas by about 600 times, making it economical to transport via specialized ships to regions not reached by gas pipelines.
